

WORLD TEAM GOLF DRAWS BROAD FIELD

First Championship
for Eisenhower Trophy
at St. Andrews Next Month

The first World Amateur Team Championship at St. Andrews, Scotland, next month will be a global gathering in more than name.

Approximately 30 countries are expected to be represented by teams. The starting field perhaps will be the most widely representative, geographically, for the inaugural of any international amateur sports competition.

The Eisenhower Trophy will be at stake in this first event of the new World Amateur Golf Council. The dates are October 8-11.

The Championship is at 72 holes stroke play over four days. Each Member Organization of the World Council may be represented by three or four players, at its option. In each round the total of the three lowest scores by players of each team constitutes the Team score. The total of the three-player team scores for the four rounds is the team's score for the Championship.

The first 24 Member Organizations to file entries represent the following countries: Argentina, Austria, Australia, Belgium, Bermuda, Brazil, Canada, Republic of China, Finland, France, Germany, Great Britain and Ireland, India, Italy, Japan, Malaya, Netherlands, New Zealand, Philippines, Portugal, South Africa, Sweden, Switzerland, United States.

The Council's membership, including pending applicants, consists of national amateur golf authorities in 38 countries. The charter membership comprised 32 when the Council was formed at Washington in May. Subsequently six other applicants have been received.

Among the individuals competing at St. Andrews will be Joseph B. Carr, of Ireland the current British Amateur Champion; Douglas W. Bachli, of Australia, who won the 1954 British Amateur Championship; Arthur Allan Stewart, of South Africa, the current Open Champion of his country against a field including Bobby Locke, Gary Player, Dai Rees, Ken Bous-

THE JARGON

He was a golfing enthusiast, and as he took his turn in the barber's chair commanded the tonsorial artist to "Mow down the rough and trim the green." The barber himself was something of a player, and before releasing his victim recommended his wonderful tonic for a fairway which was showing signs of wear.

field and Harold Henning; Arthur Walker, of South Africa, who won the English Amateur Closed Championship in 1957 and was a semi-finalist in the British Amateur of the same year.

Joint Chairmen of the World Amateur Golf Council are John D. Ames, of Chicago, the USGA President, and Henry H. Turcan, of Newburg, Fife, Scotland, Chairman of the General Committee of the Royal and Ancient Golf Club of St. Andrews. Secretary of the Council is Joseph C. Dey, Jr., USGA Executive Director.

The Council's Administrative Committee consists of the Joint Chairmen and the following: Dr. Eduardo H. Maglione, Argentina; Shun Nomura, Japan; Charles L. Peirson, United States (Boston, Mass.); E.P. Prendergast, Australia; Prince Francesco Ruspoli di Morignano, Italy; N.C. Selway, Great Britain; Douglas O. Whyte, New Zealand.

The United States Team was to be selected during the USGA Amateur Championship in San Francisco. The non-playing Captain is Robert T. Jones, Jr., of Atlanta, who is shipping his electric cart to St. Andrews to enable him to exercise his duties. It is believed that this will be the first use of an automotive golf cart at St. Andrews.

The United States team will fly to Scotland on October 2 and will be accompanied by a number of USGA officials and their wives. It is expected that approximately 25 will be in the party.
