

Cover Photo: Environmental awareness should be reflected throughout the golf course (Barton Creek Country Club, Austin, Texas).

Nest boxes are good projects on the golf course and in your backyard. See page 1.

The Golf Club at Las Campanas in Santa Fe, New Mexico, held an Audubon Fair to educate members about their environmental efforts on the golf course. Wildlife enhancement kits were distributed and experts provided advice about implementing projects at home. See page 16.

USGA® GREEN SECTION Record

---

1

Environmental Common Sense — A Sample “In-House” Audit

Some simple steps are all you need to start.

By James Francis Moore

6

Recipe for Rapid Recovery from Winter Injury

What to do if you have only 40 days to get the course ready for a championship.

By Earl Shafer, Keith Snyder, and Stanley Zontek

9

The Environmentally Sound Turfgrass of the Future

Seashore paspalum can withstand the test.

By Dr. R. R. Duncan

12

Acid — To Inject or Not to Inject

You don't need a Ph.D. to know your pH.

By Harold F. Howard, Ph.D.

15

Involving the Public and Your Members

Hang out a welcome sign for John Q. and others who want to help.

By Ronald G. Dodson

17

Staying on Course

A long-term view and commitment are necessary to sustain excellence.

By John H. Foy

18

News Notes

22

Turf Twisters

---