It discusses how the turf industry contributed to the World War II effort and is definitely worth a few minutes of your time.

Bob Vavrek, senior agronomist, North-Central Region

When fast applications of fertilizers are needed to stay ahead of play, the use of a single nozzle can work as long as wind is not an issue.

You wait before mowing a waterlogged green? It is a difficult action?

Although the USA was eliminated from the FIFA World Cup in Brazil, American influence is still alive and kicking -

The hole location on a putting green is generally moved on a daily basis. The frequency depends on the specific course and time of year. This short video explains the reasons and benefits of this practice as well as how the process is performed.

The USGA Green Section is divided into eight regions staffed by agronomists who

Regional updates outlining current issues and experiences may be taken advantage of more fully in the present national effort to produce durable turf quickly. (John Monteith, USGA Green Section) In a few instances the present crisis has developed a need for an unprecedented expenditure of public funds for turf in connection with airfields, and is paramount for long-term success.

The way I see it, great superintendents have a knack for knowing when to take action. You hire, you fire and promote personnel. If the disconnect between the course and its superintendent occurs and any water applied will only spark and spread the disease? Pythium, a fungal disease that is becoming more common, thrive in well-watered conditions, typically in the cool months of the year. The best way to combat this is to maintain optimal mowing heights and nutrient levels.

There are times when the best course of action is to not take any action. Are you willing to lose some turf to wilt and then defend your lack of action?

The USGA Green Section Record (ISSN 2156-5813) is published biweekly via electronic mail by the United States Golf Association®. The reuse of these articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts. ©2014 by United States Golf Association®

The USGA Green Section Record is owned by the United States Golf Association and is subject to its policies regarding the reuse of articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts.

The reuse of these articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts is subject to the following restrictions:

1. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may be reproduced, in whole or in part, for non-commercial, educational, or personal use.

2. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used for commercial purposes or for any purpose that would infringe on the rights of the United States Golf Association.

3. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be resold or redistributed.

4. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used in connection with any product or service that is competitive with the United States Golf Association.

5. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used in connection with any advertising, promotion, or other commercial activity.

6. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used in connection with any website or internet service that is competitive with the United States Golf Association.

7. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used in connection with any social media or other internet service that is competitive with the United States Golf Association.

8. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used in connection with any mobile application or other software that is competitive with the United States Golf Association.

The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used in connection with any product or service that is competitive with the United States Golf Association. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be resold or redistributed. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used in connection with any website or internet service that is competitive with the United States Golf Association. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used in connection with any social media or other internet service that is competitive with the United States Golf Association. The articles, videos, presentations, and webcasts may not be used in connection with any mobile application or other software that is competitive with the United States Golf Association.